The Compassionate Samurai Business Hour
Thursday at 1 PM Pacific
April 1st 2021: The Con Job: Getting Ahead for Competence in a World Obsessed with Confidence

Join us to hear author, Dr. Suzanne Doyle-Morris identify the battles worth fighting to give you the skills you need to: capitalize on what you are doing well to silence the "imposter"; convince others to value your hard-earned experience; & redefine confidence so it doesn't continue to advantage the "status quo". We'll also learn about the inverse relationship between confidence and competence and engage in some brilliant myth-busting around the professional work environment. You'll find this data-driven author to be engaging, cutting-edge, relatable and extremely well-researched. What a j

Dr. Suzanne Doyle-Morris

Dr. Suzanne Doyle-Morris, is the author of 'The Con Job: Getting Ahead for Competence in a World Obsessed with Confidence' published in 2020. She is focused on helping professional women get the roles they want and the recognition they deserve. She has helped women move into senior roles at over 50 organizations in the UK, Europe and the US - namely in STEM, legal and financial services. Her PhD from the University of Cambridge looked at the experiences of women in male-dominated fields. Over the last 25 years, Doyle-Morris has helped organizations improve their gender balance, particularly at a senior level. In that time, she has also written two books - 'Beyond the Boys' Club: Achievin
